e-Techknowledge, Inc.

Esther Tsigeman, Vice President Of Marketing

An estimated trillion dollars worth of business will be transacted on the Internet by 2002, according to International Data Corporation's eCommerce forum in Paris. Internet, the dramatically expanding information superhighway, has opened the door to business opportunity, growth and cost-saving efficiencies. In order to increase productivity and maximize profits, competitive, aggressive businesses are turning to the Web.

Many business owners have no idea where to start in strategizing and developing their Internet activities. e-Techknowledge serves businesses both large and small and can offer knowledgeable, experience-based answers to your questions. Your Website can provide customers with critical, real-time business information, sell your products and services and provide quantifiable value to business partners and sales channels. It can also be utilized as a proprietary global communication tool for support of remote employees and the service of accounts.

e-Techknowledge will work closely with you to help illustrate Web opportunities and define your business objectives. Once defined, those objectives create the framework for the design of your Internet, Intranet or Extranet solution. The power of their experience in e-business communications, technology and marketing can be directed to your company's Internet initiatives. For businesses who want to utilize the potential of today's technology, contact e-Techknowledge, located in Queens Village at 80-47 Bell Boulevard, phone (718) 479-4714 or 1-800-644-6698, or visit them online www.e-techknowledge.net.
